

Tim Sebastian

Author, Journalist and Former Presenter of BBC's HARDtalk

"The man with all the questions" BBC

Tim Sebastian is the chairman of The New Arab Debates, currently broadcast and distributed worldwide on Deutsche Welle TV. The award-winning former BBC foreign correspondent was the first presenter of HARDtalk, BBC World's daily half-hour interview programme.

TOPICS:

- Middle East - Why Isis Matters
- Democracy - Failing Experiment
- America - Is Trump a Beginning or an End?
- Free Market Dictatorships - Is That Where the World is Headed?

IN DETAIL:

Tim holds a BA Honours degree in modern languages from Oxford University. Based in Warsaw from 1979, he became the BBC's Europe Correspondent in 1982. Two years later he went to Moscow. In 1989 he moved to Washington where he was based until 1989. Tim was the founder and chairman of The Doha Debates which were broadcast across the globe on BBC World News from 2004 until 2012. In 1982, he was awarded the British Academy of Film and Television Arts 'Richard Dimbleby Award'. In 2000 and 2001 he won Britain's prestigious Royal Television Society Interviewer of the Year Award.

LANGUAGES:

He presents in English and also speaks Russian and German.

WHAT HE OFFERS YOU:

With a wealth of knowledge of current and world affairs and having met and interviewed thousands of people, few are better qualified than Tim Sebastian to talk in depth and knowledgeably about the current economic and political landscape. Tim is also an excellent host and his skills as a conference moderator are unparalleled.

PUBLICATIONS:

1998 Ultra
1997 War Dance
1996 Saviour's Gate
 Special Relations
1995 Last Rights
1994 The Memory Church
1993 Exit Berlin
1990 Spy Shadow

HOW HE PRESENTS:

A meticulous interviewer, speaker and moderator Tim is renowned for his in depth preparation, relaxed style and professional approach.